PROF. LOWTH TALKS TO WOMEN WORKERS

Tells Ladies in Address at Library Hall That They Are Agents of the United States.

"You are now agents of Uncle Sam, enlisted because this war is our war," said Prof. F. J. Lowth to the large audience of ladies, belonging to the Women's Liberty Loan Committee, at a meeting held at the library hall, Tuesday afternoon at 7 o'clock. The great issues at stake at this time are Liberty or Slavery, and there is great need for your service.

The speaker quoted the words of Rudyard Kipling in a recent address at Folkestone, in which he says in part: "We are fighting for our lives, and the lives of every man, woman and child in the civilized world. Nothing else matters."

The speaker emphasized the thought that the great things which we win in the war were Money, Men, Food and Ships, and the first is necessary to all the others. The boys are in it over there, and we must back them up to the fullest extent," was one thought expressed most forcibly.

The immense population of the United States, now totaling one hundred millions, was dwelt upon from the slight success recorded from each one of it would do their bit was mentioned. The incentives for people to buy the Liberty Bonds were defined as being that of patriotism and of a personal desire to save.

The question of eliminating waste was also touched upon and the vital need of conserving the wheat supply of the country was emphasized. He closed with a plea for loyal optimism and that all realize the seriousness of the situation, to be firm in a "will for victory."

Mr. George Wolcott of Beloit gave a vivid word picture of the scene in the trenches, in the fog blue, when a volunteer went out to bomb the enemy trenches. He said that there were over 400 boys from Janesville in service and over half of them were in the front lines.

He gave a general discussion of bond selling and gave some practical hints along the line of salesmanship. He explained the terms used in selling bonds, and said that success was often the result of a study of human nature. He suggested the formation of a flying squadron such as they had in Beloit, to handle the debt cases, in that the ladies in the city usually went in pairs when selling bonds.

The flag of Janesville flying from the city hall by Wednesday, showing that this city has gone over to the top of the Third Liberty Loan was the first thing presented to the meeting by Allen P. Lovejoy, chairman of the city committee. He explained the plans of the committee in detail in relation to touring as to what would be handled by the business men's committee, by the industrial workers, and by the committee of retired farmers.

He explained the things in of the blanks, the use of receipts, and asked especially for complete reports of the work done. Although any one authorized to do so can take any subscriptions offered, it was hoped that the city would give their patronage to the women's committee.

The following are the captains of the women's committees, with their helpers:

The Fifth Ward has Mrs. J. Dulin as captain and her ladies are Mesdames T. P. Burns, J. York, J. Higgins, J. Kennedy, A. Jones, and the Misses Daisy Buchanan and Beatrice Kelly.

Monday morning the race starts, and subscriptions will begin to pour in to headquarters. Each committee is confident that its territory will organize and has determined to put this campaign on in a business-like way.

WRITES INTERESTING LETTER FROM FRANCE

Private Elmer Moltroppe in Letter to Mrs. Ida Apfel Tells of Conditions in France at Present Time.

Mrs. Ida Apfel, 1221 Bennett street, this city, has received a very interesting letter from Private Elmer Moltroppe of Co. K, 128th U. S. Inf. Company K is composed mostly of young men from Whitewater and Milwaukee.

In his letter young Moltroppe tells of the excellent weather they are enjoying over there at the present time. He also describes the village in which they are quartered and tells of the conditions of the farmers in France. His letter follows:

Somewhere in France, March 17th.

Dear Mother:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and I hope that you are the same. We are living in a small village and are having fine weather at the present time. The French people have already started their spring work. What part of France we have seen looks very pretty. They have lovely gardens here. Outside of that they are far behind the times over here. Most of the people wear wooden shoes. The farmers have a few chickens, three or four cows, a couple of horses and a few of them have sheep. I can't write much because the line is so bad. I will write more next time.

BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENING.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

For a year you've seen them marching—down the street and out to camp. You must have heard the echo of their steady tramp! tramp! tramp! Hasty! hasty! with eager faces, ready for the job ahead. Quick to go and sure to stay there till the job is put to bed. When the trouble call was sounded every one was on the spot. Pull a million ft. for battle—not a slacker in the lot.

Pretty soon they'll all be in it; and know they're going through. They have given all that's in them—after this it's up to you—up to you to stand behind them at whatever sacrifice. Though it takes your every dollar, they—no you—must pay the price. They must go through flame and fury to disprove that might is right. Never let men say you failed them while they fought and won your fight!

Never fear that of that legion any man will ever shrink. They will stay where'er you send them—you must keep their guns at work; You must mint your pile of dollars into shells to clear the way. That behind their splendid banner they are going to march some day. Do not trouble for your future, stand behind their line like men; Time to talk of trade and profit when they're safely home again.

Even now a hundred thousand hear the rattle of the guns. Even now they break the current where the tide of battle runs. They wait upon up behind them, launch more ships and still more ships. To provide them lighting comrades when at last they come to grips. And when they come back victorious from the fighting over there. You'll be just as proud as they will that you, too, have done your share.

This Clarion call to patriotic service, from the pen of James J. Montague, appeared in the New York American last Saturday morning, when the third Liberty loan was launched. The day will go down in history, as one of the red letter days of the century, especially in this great city where every channel of energy was crowded with enthusiastic workers, and where one hundred million dollars was subscribed before sundown. New York discovered long ago that the nation was in the war.

Coming out of the rural districts of the far south—where nothing disturbs the serenity, and where the pulse is seldom quickened—into this atmosphere of bustle and great activity, is a revelation which warms the heart and dispels the depression incident to life on the fringe of the border, for there is no argument here as to the final outcome, and no feeling of uncertainty. The lines of loyalty are so closely drawn, that there is no neutral ground. Just two classes, loyal citizens or enemies, and the latter are already branded with the mark of Cain.

This policy of branding traitors, is a difficult policy to enforce in the great cosmopolitan city of New York, where representatives of every nation under the sun have long sought refuge. Socialism is always clamoring for recognition, and the red hand of anarchy is ever in evidence, while the German spy is a constant menace. A young man was interned at Ellis Island a time ago, and finally released on a pledge of loyalty. Shortly thereafter he went to a drug store and bought fifty dollars worth of chemicals. He was soon discovered making bombs in an attic.

Every industry is closely guarded and arrests are of daily occurrence. A fleet of patrol boats and a not guard the harbor entrance. The great basin is crowded with vessels of all descriptions, many of them big freighters from neutral countries, which have been riding at anchor here for a year or more. Among the ships taken over from Germany, not long ago, was the Vaterland, said to be the largest vessel afloat. She has been re-christened the Levithan, and sailed away, the other day, with sixteen thousand troops and a crew of twelve hundred men.

Troop trains by the dozen are coming in every day and thousands of our boys pass through the big terminal stations on their way to some transport which lies at anchor near by, ready to sail away. There is nothing slow today about the mobilizing of troops and the only thought expressed it, if our allies can only hold the western front until our men arrive. Secretary Baker has discovered a few things, since he went abroad, and among them the fact that the war is less than three thousand miles away. He is humiliated by the fact that after a year of preparation, we have no airplanes on the other side, and if the present decisive battle is lost, that America will be largely responsible.

The President's Baltimore speech is now the keynote of the situation, for the administration has at last woke up, and red tape will no longer be permitted to interfere with progress. "Force" is the watchword. No more parleying with the brutal Hun. He must be driven out and driven back to the land where he belongs and then subdued. New York and the East have been quicker to grasp this truth, than other parts of the country, because it is nearer the seat of war. The atmosphere is full of it, and everybody is exhausting every effort to support our boys at the front.

This is the spirit which must possess the nation in every nook and corner of this broad land. We have passed the day for discussing "My share." Our share in this war is the utmost of our ability, both in service and money, and when we have reached the limit of endurance, even then the sacrifice will be nothing in comparison.

If you have not visited the city of Washington, during the past year, you would hardly know the place. From the most beautiful city in the land it has been transferred to the busiest. It has doubled in population, and the new contingency represents a vast army of clerks and employees working night and day to speed up the war machinery. Many of the parks have been covered with immense office buildings, and army and navy trucks have taken the place of pleasure vehicles on the streets. There is a sombre air about the place and reminders of war are on every hand. But little attention is paid to pleasure-seekers. All hotels are crowded to capacity, and a cot in the hall at four dollars a night is a luxury. The travel between New York City and the Capital is so heavy, that all Pullman trains are fortunate. Government control of railroads has added nothing to the pleasure of travel. There is no longer any rivalry and the courtesy of a government employee depends upon his disposition. The railroads used to encourage travel, but the government wants you to stay at home, and don't hesitate to tell you so.

At that it is a mighty good thing that the government has control of transportation during the war. Congestion has been relieved, and it will not occur again. Two years ago there were thousands of empty cars, mile after mile, on the sidings of trunk line roads. Today they are in service and the long side-tracks are empty. The great overhead expense, which competition compelled, has also been cut down, and while discharged employees may have a grievance, they need not long be idle when there are two jobs waiting for every man.

The taking out of our industrial and commercial life an army of two million men has brought women to the front, as it did in England, and they are already largely in evidence in New York. They are doing men's work in subways and on surface roads, and their pleasant "please move forward" is in sharp contrast to the gruff "move up" of former days.

The state of Wisconsin has been a good deal of a by-word, in the minds of eastern people, for many moons, and they have never been able to understand how La Follette gained such a foothold, but the election of Lenroot has done much to clear the atmosphere and redeem the state from odium. The national administration gained nothing in supporting Davies, and Wilson will be held to account for interference. There is an undercurrent of dissatisfaction throughout the East that will be felt when the time comes. "He kept us out of war," is no longer a popular slogan, as the nation is learning to its sorrow that we were kept out a year too long. The great war activities of the country are confined to a few states having a coast line from Norfolk to Maine. In this little corner which looks so insignificant on the map, most of the great munition plants are located, and here our shipping is concentrated. If in some way this busy panorama could be fixed in the minds of the people of the West and North, as it stamps itself through the eye, on the mind of the observer, there would no longer be any question about our being at war.

To the millions of people living in this restricted territory, the war is most intensely real, and with this intensity is born a determination to win, backed by an optimism which recognizes no sign of failure. This spirit of hopeful determination will soon possess the land, and when we arise in our might as one man, the kaiser and his hosts will disappear from the face of the earth. So mote it be.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY L. MOULTON

The German invader approached the American trench to leap over the top. He was confronted by a sentry who asked: "Who is it you wish to see, please?" "Your general," was the gruff reply. "Please go on this blank, stating the nature of your business, also give me your card. I don't think the general is in, but if he is, I will try to arrange an appointment for you." The young sentry had been an office boy in a railroad president's office back in the States.

"France then England—then America,"—William. "What?"

The report that the propelling force in that sixty-mile German gun is composed of cold storage eggs is probably a canard. Not enough eggs in Germany.

AN IDEA.

There are a lot of fat old ginks like us in this country. Who are not acceptable for service on the other side of the Atlantic. It is a shame to tell this material go to waste. Organize them into dining squads. To shoot German spies. It would keep them reasonably busy for a year or two, and it would be a pleasure.

BERLIN, WIS. SEEMS TO BE LOCATED IN THE RIGHT STATE.

My friend Oscar Odd McIntyre returned to New York from Washington the other day.

"I heard, a senator, make a bully speech the other day," he said.

"What was he talking about?" I asked.

"He didn't say," replied Mac.

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.

The other day we resolved to forget the war.

And we took the kid, who is six years old.

And went out in the woods.

And looked for wild flowers, without seeing any.

So we sat down under a tree and dreamed.

A couple of optimistic birds were chirping.

The wind was singing among the tree-tops.

And a few fleecy clouds were flying.

The sun shined down benignly.

And we dozed off and forgot the war.

Suddenly we were awakened.

By a shrill cry of triumph.

We hastened to the spot at once.

"The damned kaiser was here," said the kid.

"And I hit him with ten rocks." See him run!

Or among the trees we could see a limping old goat.

Limping painfully away.

You can't dodge this war thing.

It sticks closer than an installment contract.

Just Folks

THE COMEDIAN

Whatever the task and whatever the risk, wherever the flag is in air. The funny man with his sunny ways. There are men who fret, there are men who dream, men making the best of it. But whether it's hunger or death, or burning thirst in a desert place, There is always one, by the good Lord's grace, Who is making a jest of it.

He travels wherever his brothers go and he leaves his home behind him. He need not smile, he seems to know. In the ranks of death you'll find him. When some are weary and sick and faint, and all with the dust are choking. He dances there with a spirit gay And utters with gold what is drab and gray. And lifts the gloom of the night and day. He scatters his mirthful joking.

He wins to courage the soul tried men, he lightens their hours of sorrow. He turns their thoughts from the grief that is to the joy that may come tomorrow. He mocks at death and he jests at toll; as one that is never weary He japes at danger and discipline. Or the muddy trench that he's standing in. There's nothing can banish his merry grin. Or dampen his spirits chery.

The honors of war to its heroes go, for them are the pomp and glory. But seldom it is that the types relate a victor's inside story. And few shall know when the strife is done and the history's made hereafter. How much depends on him who The souls of men with a cheerful word, And kept them brave by a jest. And when they closed their days with laughter.

SAILS FOR MIAMI TO COMPLETE HIS STUDY

Kenneth Parper, who has been at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the past three months taking a course in naval aviation, has completed his line of study and has been ordered to report to the flag station at Miami, Florida. He sailed from New York today, according to a program received by his father, George S. Parper, this morning. While at Boston school Mr. Parper has had one of the petty officers and had charge of the petty officers and had charge at Miami he will be given the rank of lieutenant in the naval aviation service.

Camp Grant Notes

Camp Grant, Ill., April 12.—The eighty-sixth division today threw its entire strength into the great drive of the third Liberty loan campaign, by crowding out the provisions of the first field order issued at Camp Grant, the division, together with the 183rd brigade of the colored troops, three provisional engineer regiments, and the 31st field artillery, under the command of Brigadier General Lyman W. V. Kennon, the camp commander, and paraded to Rockford, where a holiday had been declared by Mayor Rev. John J. Connelley, and it is predicted, the last time the Eighty-Sixth Division will move as a unit until they have been ordered for duty in France. The young sentry had been an office boy in a railroad president's office back in the States.

The 171st brigade had taken up its position on Central Avenue in camp at Five Points, at 12:05. This brigade is General Kennon's command, but is now temporarily commanded by Colonel Charles E. Stodier of the 34th Infantry.

Brigadier General Charles H. Martin's "all Chicago" brigade was next in line. At 12:25 p. m. the head of the column arrived at Five Points. Colonel Charles R. Howland rode at the head of his crack 342nd regiment of west riders. Colonel B. T. Simmons headed Chicagoans, and the rest of the 34th Infantry.

Colonel Clarke S. Smith, commanding the first provisional engineer brigade, arrived at Five Points at 12:45 p. m. The 11th engineers, the divisional engineer regiment heading the column, and behind it strung down Central Avenue were the 2nd engineers, a regiment of railroad men being recruited here for immediate duty overseas. The 32nd, 33rd and 34th engineer regiments, forming the 2nd provisional engineer brigade, followed the 11th. Colonel E. J. Spencer, followed the 1st provisional engineer brigade in column.

Brigadier General Malvern Hill Barton brought his 183rd brigade of colored troops down Station Avenue and West Service Street to Five Points at 1:00 p. m. They are the only unit in camp that is not a part of the war. They are all colored Chicagoans and the snap and uniformity with which they executed their part of the program was a revelation.

The 311th field signal battalion, led by Major C. W. Shands, followed the 183rd brigade, arriving at Five Points at 1:20. The 1st field artillery brigade, led by Colonel Philip R. Ward, arrived at Five Points at 1:30 p. m. This brigade, with its battle material, formed one of the most imposing columns of the parade. The 31st vigorous Chicagoans, less than a year ago clerks, stock yard laborers, college students and lawyers led their proud and airy steeds and caissons, the air of officers and noncommissioned. To many Rockfordians this was their first glimpse of the snappy, red-corded enlisted men in action.

Behind Colonel Ward rode the 353rd heavy field artillery and behind it came the 331st field artillery, mostly northern Wisconsin men. The 322nd field artillery followed the 331st. The 31st vigorous Chicagoans, less than a year ago clerks, stock yard laborers, college students and lawyers led their proud and airy steeds and caissons, the air of officers and noncommissioned. Every effort was made to make the parade a grand success. A staff officer from each brigade or similar organization reported at division headquarters at 10:00 a. m. for synchronization of watches. Uniform and belt buckles and were worn by troops equipped with belts, and without belts by those not so equipped. The formation assumed before the column arrived at the corner of 11th and 12th streets was a column of platoons of a route column. From this point to Main and Morgan streets the formation was a column of platoons or a sixteen man front.

STAGE SET FOR BIG

PATRIOTIC MEETINGS

Plans All Completed for Two of the Biggest Patriotic Gatherings That Have Ever Been Held in Wisconsin.

Everything is ready for the two big patriotic meetings that are to be held in this city tomorrow evening, Sunday, April 14th, will be a day long remembered by the people of this community. The meetings are going to be the biggest patriotic gatherings that have ever been held in this state.

The meeting at the Myers theatre, it is hoped, will be one of the biggest of the city, leaving the Congregational church for the younger people. An added attraction at the church meeting will be the orchestra and choir from the Institute for the Blind. William Mahoney will preside at this meeting. It is planned to have both Mr. Kearney and Daniel Grady address both meetings, but nothing definite can be done in this respect until the speakers arrive in the city.

The doors at the Myers theatre will be opened at seven o'clock and the meeting will commence at eight o'clock. The committee urges that the people get to the theatre as soon after seven o'clock as possible so that there will be no rush or confusion prior to the opening of the meeting. Without a doubt the theatre will be crowded to capacity and anyone desiring a seat should make a special effort to get to the theatre early.

George McKee has been named to have complete charge of the meeting. He will look after the seating and the decoration. M. G. Jeffris, chairman of the Rock county Liberty loan committee, will preside at the meeting. Mr. McKee has on his staff as ushers Fred Capelle, Hugh Craig, F. S. Sheldon and A. Baumann. Rev. Ewing will have complete charge of the meeting at the Congregational church. The men workers and the band will be seated on the stage and the lady workers will have the boxes and the first four rows of the main floor reserved for them.

A luncheon of the down-town workers will be held at the Grand Hotel on Monday noon. The luncheon has for its purpose of going over the work that has been done and making reports as to the progress of the drive. A similar luncheon will be held on Tuesday noon at the Myers Hotel. The four minute speakers for this evening and their theatres are Louis Avery, Myers; Andy Gibbons, Majestic; Thomas Welch, Beverly; William Dougherty, Apollo.

CO-EDS ENTERTAINED

AT "Y" LAST NIGHT

Pleasant Evening Spent Teaching Co-Eds How to Play Billiards; Refreshments Were Also Served.

Last evening the youthful Romeo of the high school entertained the girls of the monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. The Hi-Y Co-ed usually have a meeting once a month, but no definite date is ever fixed, which makes the event more thrilling. The paramount thought of the young men, according to Maurice Russell, who was absolutely sure this morning that at the entertainment the girls would be made to feel that chivalry is the paramount thought of the young men, was to show the girls that they were not only good looking but also good fellows. LOAN WORKERS MEET TO DISCUSS PLANS

BOTH WOMEN AND MEN'S COMMITTEES MEET ON FRIDAY TO COMPLETE ARRANGEMENTS FOR OPENING OF DRIVE ON MONDAY.

WILL FORM BATTALION

All People Who Purchase a $500 Bond Will Be Enlisted in Machine Gun Battalion.

Two large meetings, one for the lady workers and the other for the men workers of the Third Liberty Loan drive, which was held yesterday, practically completed the plans for the big drive, which is to open Monday morning at nine o'clock.

At four o'clock Monday afternoon the women workers of this city gathered at the Library hall and for over two hours discussed plans for the coming drive. Mr. Lowry, the addresser of the present campaign and gave them a very forceful talk. All plans for the drive were talked over by the ladies, who are making the hope that the ladies of the city would hold their subscriptions at home and not file them down town so that the women who are making the canvass might receive the credit for turning in the subscriptions. This plan has the approval of the Liberty Loan committee and it is recommended that the women of the city do it. The women's committee is doing a great deal of work and is entitled to the credit of all the subscriptions it can get.

A meeting of the men salesmen who are to cover the down town district in the interest of the Liberty loan drive, held a meeting at the loan headquarters on North Main street last evening. Plans for the campaign were discussed and the details worked out. George Wolcott of Beloit gave the men a talk on the importance of this drive. At the meeting it was decided to endeavor to organize in Janesville a machine gun battalion. The cost of a machine gun is $300. It is the intention to furnish every one who buys a $500 bond or a multiple of $500, a particular emblem to wear showing that they have supplied the government with money enough to purchase a machine gun in the form of third Liberty loan bonds. The aim is to enlist full one thousand people in the machine gun battalion. A special committee consisting of Messrs. L. A. Levy and H. H. Bliss was appointed to arrange for the insignia and have it ready to distribute when the bonds go on sale next week.

"STRONG ARM" MEN SOLICITING FUNDS

Workers For the County War Fund Are Visiting Delinquents in All Parts of the County.

During the past three or four days the "strong arm" committees, who are working to secure the best business and the best citizens who have not as yet been paid, have been visiting those few people who are on the delinquent list and from reports which they have turned in, it is known that innovation has been marked. The several committees which have been at work have visited all parts of the county and in every case they have found that the persons were willing to pay when approached by them.

Automobiles with workers from Evansville, Edgerton, Janesville and Beloit began the "strong arm" campaign, as it has been called by the workers. They report that up to the present time they have not been refused by anyone yet visited.

The committee has been this method of approaching the delinquent men so that they can fully explain the movement to them and prove to them that it is their duty to give the money for the boys who are fighting at the front. The movement will be continued next week unless payments from the delinquents do not come in at a rapid rate.

ONE-THIRD OF TOTAL NUMBER OF MEN ARE LISTED IN CLASS 1

Records of Local Draft Board Show That 677 Registrants Have Been Placed in the First Class.

Placing of the registrants of the northern district of Rock county in the various classes in the selective service system was completed by the local board some time ago. All classifications were made from the questionnaires which were mailed to all of those registered. A final report upon the number placed in each class was prepared this morning and sent to Governor Philipp to be placed on file.

The figures contained in the report are as follows: Class No. 1, 277; Class No. 2, 204; Class No. 3, 134; Class No. 4, 891; Class No. 5, 372.

The actual number of men in class one who would be taken into service is much less than 677, due to several reasons. Approximately fifty of them have already been called and sent to camp, while a score of others have enlisted. All of the remaining men are by no means fit for military service. A fair sized percentage of them have been disqualified for general service, but have been held liable for limited service.

In the second class 204 men are listed. These are "necessary skilled farm laborers in necessary agricultural enterprises," and also married men whose wives are not entirely dependent upon them for support. These men have been placed. These are the men with wives or children who are dependent on their labor for support. These men will probably never be called for the selective service as these becoming twenty-one each year are expected to meet all future requirements.

Many aliens, ministers, men permanently physically or mentally unfit for service, and men already in the army or navy, are listed in the last class. A large number of men are counted for by the large number of men of draft age who voluntarily enlisted, either before or after the draft.

SIMON SMITH RESIGNS COUNCIL PRESIDENCY

Resignation of Simon Smith as President of County Council of Defense Accepted.—Name Successor at Next Meeting.

Simon Smith of Beloit, for the past year president of the Rock County Council of Defense, handed in his resignation at the meeting of the executive committee of the county held at the county court house this afternoon. He stated that the reason for his resignation was that he was going to be absent from the county for a considerable time during the coming summer and felt that he could not handle the work. His resignation was accepted but the matter of selecting a successor was left over until the next meeting. Upon the motion of F. P. Starr a rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Smith for his efficient services during his term of office. Sixty bills for the month were audited and ordered paid. A special committee, consisting of Vice President M. P. Richardson, F. P. Starr and John Paul was appointed to investigate the advisability of reorganizing the executive committee along the lines recommended by the state council of defense. County Agricultural Agent L. A. Markham summarized the work which has been done to further the production of foodstuffs. He told of the big increase in the wheat acreage, but stated that the sugar beet acreage had not been greatly increased. He said that the labor situation was good and that 125 high school boys had been sent to work on farms during the past week.

RADIOGRAM SENT TO KAISER

(Decoded by Eugene H. Blake of The Vigilantes.)

Have just invited expedition from leading nations on anniversary year getting America into our war; Ghenghis Khan sends congratulations on one more year of our existence. This may be referred to a peace conference; Alexander the Great says no man can wish for more worlds to conquer with hundred millions of Americans; Frederick the Great urges fooling Americans into quick German peace; Pharaoh fears increasing plagues of hunger, disease and world hunger unless you stop; Louis XVI. says watch your home; Nero considers American dock fires clever; Napoleon Bonaparte suggests making sure Russia considers you a liberator and not an enemy; Attila and congratulations that your spies and fire bugs still infest America; Catherine De Medici says one St. Bartholomew's night may be said to you; Louis XVI. says sure you can finish Armenians but says Americans are armed; I think America slow but dangerous; don't know whether to congratulate or not.

The World is Watching Us

During this great drive for Liberty Bonds, the eyes of all the world are turned our way.

The Kaiser and his crowd hope we will fail. All the rest of the world is praying for our success. While the boys are fighting like demons "over there" we must fight like the patriots we are here at home.

What is the largest sum you can put into Bonds during the next few weeks? Go in debt to that extent and then fight to make good.

This plan will help you and it will help Uncle Sam.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins
and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

On Saturday next, April 20, at the Coliseum, Chicago, the world's greatest show, the Ringling, will open the season of 1918 for a run of two weeks, and at this performance they will ask the approval of circus critics and newspaper men in general of what they consider their greatest efforts to please the public. A new spectacle which opens the show with a new wardrobe specially designed will certainly make the great audience sit up and take notice. The great performance and athletes for this season, headed by the world's greatest bareback rider, Max Wirth, certainly makes it appear as though the title of the greatest show in the world was well founded. On the following Wednesday, April 24, which is my birthday (no age given), at least, my birthday for several years, I with two or three of my friends, will be the guests of the show. I expect to give you in my following letter something of a detailed account of the great show, and possibly of the prospects of its coming to Janesville later in the season.

The following letter of early days in the show business should prove interesting reading as it treats of two Wisconsin men whose homes were in Delavan, the late George Costello and W. C. Coup, both of whom were co-partners in the great showmen of their time. W. C. Coup was manager and part owner of the Barnum show from 1871 to 1875 inclusive. Probably there would have been a Barnum show had it not been for Mr. Coup. Barnum made a fortune in the museum business in New York and retired in 1875 and was living at the time of his death in the city of New York. Mr. Coup went from Delavan to Bridgeport and persuaded Mr. Barnum to put out a circus with himself and George Costello. He had great difficulty in doing this, as Mr. Barnum's people objected to it on account of his advanced years. However, they put out a wagon show in the spring of 1877. The business was a great success and they were buying middle places and seats all over the country. In 1878 and 1879 they gave three exhibitions every day, to a. m., 2 and p. m., advertised and charged the price for three performances. In 1879 they put on two shows, which proved their Waterloo. Their competitors got out a bill stating that one-half of the Barnum show was in the city of New York, and the other half in another locality, naming the locality, and would up with the query, "Which half do you intend to visit?"

It was due to Mr. Coup's efforts that the first New York hippodrome was built on the site of the present one. He also built the New York Aquarium in 1879, and it was one of the greatest showmen that ever lived. He was an honorable gentleman of extraordinary ability, generous to a fault, and died without a dollar.

A few days ago I received the following article from Mr. Cole of the Janesville News, and as Dr. Dwight has been making Janesville his home for several years, it should prove interesting to our readers.

"Alfred T. Ringling, famous circus man, was in Madison Thursday, he visited the zoo in front of the park, and was greatly impressed with the remarkably fine collection of choice specimens of beasts, birds and fishes, promptly offered to contribute an elephant, to be kept in the zoo, and to be used for educational purposes, and for the pleasure of the people. Mr. Ringling personally owns the elephant, and is apart from the zoo, and is willing to be sent to Madison. He went to the zoo in company with Dr. C. D. Dwight, president of the Modern Aquarium and Zoological society, and of the afternoon there, returning and leaving of 1879 for New York. He was greatly interested in the model cases and cages, often bursting out with exclamations of admiration at the perfection of the specimens and the excellence of their housing. The splendid polar bear, monkeys, the usual birds, the super lion, leopards and tigers, and the choice representatives of the show, finally all delighted him. Dr. Dwight, largely less of a zoological enthusiast than Mr. Ringling, pointed out an exhibit made for the elephant which he hoped some time to be able to see, and it was then that Mr. Ringling frankly remarked that he would furnish the elephant. 'I will see which one I can best space and which one will be the most desirable to you,' he added. We are two 'nuts' about animals. Mr. Ringling remarked facetiously after going over the zoo and nothing Dr. Dwight's great enthusiasm and knowledge of animal life. In this respect Dr. Dwight is a man after Mr. Ringling's own heart. The two 'nuts' talked of the desirability of a great animal farm for the connection of various species that are threatened with extinction. Both had given serious thought to the matter. Dr. Dwight thought that a farm should be located perhaps in southern Virginia, which is near enough the cold zone to effect the proper acclimating of animals, but Mr. Ringling had rather pitched upon Porto Rico as the right place. Something more than a dream may result from the conference. The animals most in danger of extinction are the giraffe and hippopotamus, said Mr. Ringling."

Richard Ringling, son of Alfred T. Ringling, and who last season headed the R. T. Richards show, has become an expert roper and is very enthusiastic about the proposed roping contest at the New York Hippodrome on the occasion of the Showmen's League benefit Sunday, April 21. Rumor has it that Richard himself is as good as any of the champions around these parts.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Mario Dressler, a favorite comedienne of the movies, has been especially honored by Secretary McAdoo. He has chosen her to star as a Liberty loan campaigner and she had the pleasure of starting her campaign at Washington.

On the first day of the third loan drive Miss Dressler spoke from the steps of the capitol at Washington and after acknowledging with a bow the many cheers that were given her she dashed away to start on her tour through middle-western cities.

Miss Dressler will appear in practically all of the larger cities east of the Missouri river. Her remarks are all more or less impromptu as she believes she can put more pep in her appeals in this way. She will have plenty to do, it appears, as her tour does not close till May 10, when she reaches New York.

MARGUERITE'S MUMPS
Because she is down with the mumps, Marguerite Clark has been obliged to cancel the opening dates of her work in the Liberty loan drive. It is expected that she will recover sufficiently to start her campaign in Chicago.

Harry Fox has incorporated for the production of photoplays, in which he will be featured. The plan is to produce two- and three-reel comedies, which will be written and directed by Vincent Bryan. Work will start the current month. The new concern is capitalized for $100,000, with Jean Schwartz as its treasurer. Fox and Schwartz, by the way, are brothers-in-law, being wedded to the Dolly sisters.

Herbert Brenon has sent back from England for certain players, to sail at once, to assist him on the big war film he is producing. D. W. Griffith's picture is now on exhibition, and is said to be backed by English capital. John Ford is preparing still another film of similar trend, and Ralph Ince, his brother, is reported to be already ready for the production of a similar scenario.

Enid Bennett is back from her honeymoon.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs Of Last Week

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)
The moving picture stars—Mary Pickford, Lucille Chapin and Douglas Fairbanks—are selling Liberty bonds this week in the east, and Mary Miles Minter recently officiated at the launching of a new ten-passenger sea plane at Santa Barbara.

At the Beverly on Sunday Emmy Veltien took the part of an unsuccessful music student who was persuaded by a sharper to personate the long missing daughter of a rich man. The "ghost" scene was carried out for a while, but her conscience rebelled and she confessed the fraud. An unusual ending was given.

A very beautiful and artistic production was seen in "The World for Sale," a mid-week offering. The story is of the Canadian woods, and was very well done.

"The Red Heart" was the story of an educated Indian, a graduate of Yale, who was employed as an engineer on an irrigation ditch in the desert. He falls in love with an Indian girl, who is in the west seeking for health. Because she does not fully believe him off bodily to the

I simply must tell you of a horrid dreadful nauseating experience I had while I was crossing the links on my way to gather drimberries this afternoon. I was passing that thicket of gladders near hole 104, and suddenly the most awful terrible disgraceful food or putrid fantasy I have ever heard issued from behind it. Some man was evidently having trouble getting his ball out of the mud, and oh, such language! I didn't catch sight of him, but I should recognize his voice anywhere, and as soon as I do I shall give him a piece of my mind and then report him! Wasn't it perfectly nasty?"

The major crossed, turned red, then purple and then yellow. Suddenly a blindingly brilliant idea struck him. Confronting his features, he wiggled the fingers of both hands desperately in Mrs. Hammer-Tongs' face.

"Poor man," she murmured. "He's deaf and dumb!"

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Although I know she will read this when you answer it, I am writing it so she will. She always turns to your column the first thing. I am a young man not a bit afraid of ashamed of my size or build. I have been engaged for two years and have seen worse men than I have ever been made good. Well here goes:

Some time ago I met a girl in your town and I became very much interested in this same girl and it was not long until I loved her better than I ever dreamed of loving any one. She returned my love as if she were shipped out. I was not a great while until we were engaged.

One night not long after we went to her house, not having any set evening, as my work ran uneven and early others. This night I went out early and found another man at the house. I went up on the porch and her sister opened the door to me. She did not come out to say "How are you?" or anything else. I waited until nine o'clock and she did not open the door to the room where they were. Then I went home.

A week later I went by the house and asked her reason for such actions, but she only cried and would not answer by word or sign. I became angry and walked away and I've seen her pass me about ten feet from me since that day and never have any light or recognition in her eyes. I know I was true to her than she was to me during our courtship. What is the answer? Maybe she will wonder what it is herself when she reads this. It is a tough proposition.

STUMPED.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years old and have been engaged with a young man who is twenty-three years old for nearly four months. We have been engaged for twenty months. He has given me a real pretty, ruby ring and a small diamond ring. He has always been nice to me and does everything to please me until recently. He now corresponds with a teacher and has been writing to her for two months, keeping it from me. We have always been jealous of each other. He has written and told me I may have the pleasure of sending his rings and he I may have the pleasure of sending his rings and he pretends I haven't been true to him. He knows better and wants that for an excuse.

I am at a loss what to do. I have wanted a ruby and diamond all my life and I think I deserve these rings. Shall I write him and tell him how I feel? How can I find out if he still loves me or likes me? Some times I think I will not even write him.

A boy friend took a picture of me and another boy friend to camp and gave it to my real friend, and so he thinks I have not been true to him. Shall I write and tell him how it was. He came home a few days ago and did not come to use me. He went to see the teacher.

AWHIRL.
Send the rings to the boy and also a letter explaining about the picture. Simply state facts and do not say anything that will give the impression that you are eager to remain engaged.

You cannot keep the rings since you do not intend to marry and he has asked for them. Give them up without even intimating that you would like to keep them.

Remember that they are not the only two rings in the world and that if you want them badly enough you can earn money and buy some more. Surely you would have more pleasure in rings you bought yourself than in rings someone did not want you to have.

SIDE TALKS

—BY—
RUTH CAMERON

YOU CAN CHANGE.
You can change your habits. One often hears people say, "Well, that's the easiest way for me to do such and such a thing. Other people may be able to do it differently, but I can't." And there they rest their case.

Ninety-nine out of ten, they have never given the other person's way a fair trial.

They may have tried it, half-heartedly, in an "I-know-I-can't-possibly-do-it" spirit. They haven't tried it with a this-may-make-it-easier-I'm-going-to-do-it-I-possibly-can-spirit.

Many people seem to respect their habits. They appear to regard them as something admirable—not for any intrinsic value, but because they are theirs. "I couldn't possibly knit the continental way," I've heard women say with pride. "I've always done the other," or "I couldn't cook with a gas oven," I've heard men say. "I've used to eat" or "I've used to be a nuisance to me to bother with a dressmaker."

I have just had an experience with this attitude of mind in my own life. For years I have said, "I can't write directly to the typewriter. I have to write anything I want to say in pencil, first, and then copy it on the typewriter. I can't think without a pencil in my hand."

I have had the same queer pride I speak of in this attitude. I was conservative. It spoke of how much it increased one's efficiency if one could write direct to a machine. "It's too bad I can't," I thought, regretfully. When some very old, progressive section of my brain spoke up and said, "How do you know you can't?" You never really gave the thing a good trial. "You need a pencil in your hand to help you think," the conservative voice of my gray matter obstinately reminded me. "Well, it won't do any harm to try," persisted the radical. I kept on trying. And I conquered.

Looking for More Habits to Conquer.
At first I did part of my work on the typewriter, and went back to the pencil when I was struggling with some thought that was particularly anxious not to be captured and imprisoned in black and white words.

EVERYDAY
ETIQUETTE

An elderly lady may properly extend her hand to anyone introduced to her, whether in her own house or elsewhere.

ELIZABETH: The man who held open the door of the railroad station for you, and stared at you boldly meanwhile, would have been more polite if he had ignored your existence entirely. He counteracted the courtesy of holding the door open for you by his rudeness in gazing you. When a gentleman extends such courtesy to a lady who is a stranger to him, he should merely glance at her casually. He ought not to appear to recognize her in case he meets her on the street later, nor should the lady recognize him then or thereafter, beyond an appreciative "thank you."

A polite act of this kind does not constitute an introduction. ELIZABETH: Wines are not served at a luncheon given for young ladies; and they are losing favor as a luncheon beverage even with older women. Conversation is used instead.

Household Hints

MENU HINT
Breakfast: Strawberries au Naturel. Potatoes Hashed in Milk. Luncheon: Creamed Spinach. Barley Muffins. Little Hot Chocolate. Poultry Sauce. Cakes. Dinner: Chicken Souffle. New Potatoes. Strawberry and Banana Tart. Lettuce Salad. String Beans. Coffee.

SOUND THE ALARM
Use your alarm clock in cooking. When your cake or roast goes into the oven set the alarm for the time you wish to look at your baking. You then are able to go about your work in the other part of the house perfectly sure that you will be reminded to return to the baking at the proper time.

TO SUN THE MILK CANS
It is often a question to a farmer's wife to know just where to sun and air the milk pans, pails and cans. Try an old wagon wheel with spokes set to the ground with a large wheel on the upper end. The tinware is spread about the spokes.

RENOVATING BLACK STRAW
To renovate a black straw hat which has become old and rusty looking, go over it several times with a cloth saturated with alcohol. When dry the straw will be as black and glossy as when new.

TO BLUE CLOTHES
When using hard water to rinse clothes, add one-half cup of skimmed sweet milk to rinse water, then add your bluing and you will not have clothes streaked with bluing.

TO PRESS CLOTHES
After cleaning woolen garments, such as men's clothing, spread the garment right side up on an ironing board, lay over a cotton cloth wet with warm water containing about one tablespoon of ammonia to three pints of water, and iron until both the cloth and garment are dry. This prevents the garment having that shiny appearance which is so objectionable.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Cut hot cakes or bread with hot knife to prevent crumbling. When you buy coffee have the dealer grind it. To each pound take one egg and mix it with your hands. This is a cheap and excellent way to clarify coffee. Try it and see how it improves the coffee. In pressing silk of any color spread a sheet of tissue paper, thin enough to be seen through, over the silk. The paper protects the silk from the iron and prevents the shiny appearance made by the iron coming in direct contact with the silk. When making your little boy's blouses put a narrow belt, three quarters inch wide, at bottom does away with that unsightly string which always insists on showing; gather to this belt and button same as waist part. Waist is easier put on and always in its place. To renew black leather suitcases or handbags polish them with liquid shoe polish. You will be surprised at the results.

NEW POTATOES
The new potato season is close upon us. If the potatoes are small as they usually are, the task of peeling is tiresome and stains the hands. However, if they are washed well in cold water and then allowed to stand in boiling water for fifteen minutes they will peel in a jiffy without stains or aching fingers.

DAYTON RICE.
Melt two tablespoons of butter, four tablespoons of chopped boiled carrots, two tablespoons of boiled rice, three tablespoons of grated cheese, three chopped hard boiled eggs. Moisten with milk and season highly. Cover with cracker crumbs and brown in rackings or baking dish.

Perfection by Degrees.
Rembrandt says: "Learn to do well what you already know, and you will find in time the unknown things that you now inquire about."

Notes on Red Cross Work

Arranged by Mrs. Abbie Helms, THE BALANCE.

(Poem posted on bulletin board this week.)
There is no thought or deed today, There is nothing said or done, That serves the world in any way, Unless it serves to hold the Hun. There is no friend, however fast, Whose friendship's worth a second thought, Who does not place this first and last, And count all other things as naught. For nothing matters, small or great, Until the Hun is dead and gone, And silenced every ruthless gun.

Hospital Supplies Committee—This committee received a list of boxes of garments and supplies from Evansville, Orfordville, La Prairie, Johnson and Rock Prairie, and Lima Center, all going to the Red Cross. In answer to queries from teachers in regard to work for the children to do, the information comes from headquarters that there is not call for the knitted bath mats, but that scraps should be made into knitted scrub cloths. Rags for the purpose and directions for making may be had on application to the central workshop in the city hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

The girls of the industrial school will have the use of the work room on Saturday afternoons until the school closes in June. They will meet at 1 o'clock and work on garments under the direction of Mrs. O. O'Brien.

So many outside groups have volunteered their services and have now to be provided with cut work more garment cutters are urgently needed for this task. Women who are competent to do this work are asked to volunteer their services on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The many groups now working have volunteered their services unselfishly, showing the patriotic spirit that animates the women of the Evansville chapter. Most of the cutting of garments for these thirty-five city groups must be done by hand, as materials can seldom be obtained in large enough quantities to make machine cutting worth while.

A box of 134 suits, to be used in cantonment hospitals, was shipped this week. All workers who have suits taken out last summer are requested to return them as soon as possible. Only the warmer garments are to be made this summer, if materials are obtainable.

Refugee Garment Department—Several classes in the domestic science course at the high school have been doing really wonderful work in making garments for this department. They are the freshmen and sophomore classes, under the direction of Miss Royce, and their work is so perfect and made so exactly according to directions that it needs no change when it comes in. They have completed 73 pinafores and 140 undergarments for women and children during the last few weeks. The training school also has been doing very good work with Miss Johnson in charge, and the work contributed by the vocational school, under Miss Hayes and Miss Thatcher, is also very excellent in quality. Donations have been received this week from Evansville, La Prairie, Orfordville, Rock Prairie, Lima Center, and also from the Polish club.

Surgical Dressings Committee—The workshop has been a very busy place during this last week, every available table being full on almost every afternoon. Another large table is being made ready and will be equipped for work the coming week. A good deal of the gauze cutting for the auxiliaries is done here, and that makes extra work for this chapter. To many places which have no machine for cutting, it is sent cut, ready for folding.

Evansville does its own cutting, so this week a carton containing 800 yards of gauze was sent, and the same amount made up the supply for last week. This shows in some ways the degree the amount of material used in the work.

Evansville and Edgerton have responded nobly with their supplies of dressings completed, which are of beautiful workmanship.

An evening class was started on Wednesday, which will allow those busy during the day to accomplish something in this work. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the room will be open for work all day, and on Wednesday the evening class. A large box of completed dressings was shipped to headquarters this week.

The evening class held on Wednesday was a splendid success. About seventy girls coming to work on surgical dressings. They were remarkably deft with their fingers, and made about 650 very fine dressings during the evening, according to get the knack of it very quickly. There were seven instructors in attendance, and they were very busy for a while getting the girls outfitted and ready. All the tables were filled, and it was an inspiring sight to see the enthusiasm with which the girls took hold of the work, and the business-like way in which they accomplished their tasks.

Her Great Adventure
by Zoe Backley

BEING "SENSIBLE"

To Dennet the pressure of Claire's hand and her sudden dash into the house meant but one thing. She had said yes. She had fulfilled his wish. He walked home with a grateful, happy glow through his soul being. He began at once to plan how he could best make Claire content; how he should ultimately find the road to her heart and make it beat with real love for him. He was sincere and therefore confident. He felt he had much to give, because he truly cared for this girl he had known since they were children. He wondered now why he had not always seen Claire's worth and charm. They had not been thrown together as he and Ruth, the girl he married, and been. That was it, he decided. It did not occur to Hiram that he and Claire were of different blood altogether, that even an earlier proclivity would not have led to marriage between them. Claire's acceptance of him, of his now was only with the tips of her fingers, so to say.

From that moment Hiram waited on his customers with new zeal and eagerness. His little daughter discovered in him a new and livelier playmate. His acid old housekeeper, noting his new zest for life, his new amiability, his new cordiality, began to tell her friends that "Hiram was brightening" up for sundays, and "wouldn't be no surprise if 'twas that spruce-looking Berton girl."

It spruced Claire very differently. In the first place she had not meant the pressure of the hand to mean a full answer. She wanted time to think it over. And yet—what else was there for her to do? "Sensible" marriage. She loved home-making and there was a home to make. She loved children and there was a child who needed mothering and had all

BEING "SENSIBLE"

To Dennet the pressure of Claire's hand and her sudden dash into the house meant but one thing. She had said yes. She had fulfilled his wish. He walked home with a grateful, happy glow through his soul being. He began at once to plan how he could best make Claire content; how he should ultimately find the road to her heart and make it beat with real love for him. He was sincere and therefore confident. He felt he had much to give, because he truly cared for this girl he had known since they were children. He wondered now why he had not always seen Claire's worth and charm. They had not been thrown together as he and Ruth, the girl he married, and been. That was it, he decided. It did not occur to Hiram that he and Claire were of different blood altogether, that even an earlier proclivity would not have led to marriage between them. Claire's acceptance of him, of his now was only with the tips of her fingers, so to say.

From that moment Hiram waited on his customers with new zeal and eagerness. His little daughter discovered in him a new and livelier playmate. His acid old housekeeper, noting his new zest for life, his new amiability, his new cordiality, began to tell her friends that "Hiram was brightening" up for sundays, and "wouldn't be no surprise if 'twas that spruce-looking Berton girl."

It spruced Claire very differently. In the first place she had not meant the pressure of the hand to mean a full answer. She wanted time to think it over. And yet—what else was there for her to do? "Sensible" marriage. She loved home-making and there was a home to make. She loved children and there was a child who needed mothering and had all

Refugee Garment Department—Several classes in the domestic science course at the high school have been doing really wonderful work in making garments for this department. They are the freshmen and sophomore classes, under the direction of Miss Royce, and their work is so perfect and made so exactly according to directions that it needs no change when it comes in. They have completed 73 pinafores and 140 undergarments for women and children during the last few weeks. The training school also has been doing very good work with Miss Johnson in charge, and the work contributed by the vocational school, under Miss Hayes and Miss Thatcher, is also very excellent in quality. Donations have been received this week from Evansville, La Prairie, Orfordville, Rock Prairie, Lima Center, and also from the Polish club.

Surgical Dressings Committee—The workshop has been a very busy place during this last week, every available table being full on almost every afternoon. Another large table is being made ready and will be equipped for work the coming week. A good deal of the gauze cutting for the auxiliaries is done here, and that makes extra work for this chapter. To many places which have no machine for cutting, it is sent cut, ready for folding.

Evansville does its own cutting, so this week a carton containing 800 yards of gauze was sent, and the same amount made up the supply for last week. This shows in some ways the degree the amount of material used in the work.

Evansville and Edgerton have responded nobly with their supplies of dressings completed, which are of beautiful workmanship.

An evening class was started on Wednesday, which will allow those busy during the day to accomplish something in this work. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the room will be open for work all day, and on Wednesday the evening class. A large box of completed dressings was shipped to headquarters this week.

The evening class held on Wednesday was a splendid success. About seventy girls coming to work on surgical dressings. They were remarkably deft with their fingers, and made about 650 very fine dressings during the evening, according to get the knack of it very quickly. There were seven instructors in attendance, and they were very busy for a while getting the girls outfitted and ready. All the tables were filled, and it was an inspiring sight to see the enthusiasm with which the girls took hold of the work, and the business-like way in which they accomplished their tasks.

So many outside groups have volunteered their services and have now to be provided with cut work more garment cutters are urgently needed for this task. BIG LEAGUE NINES WILL OPEN SEASON DURING COMING WEEK

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, April 12.—The coming week will witness the opening of another major league baseball season with the playing of the initial games in the American and National leagues. The schedules of 1918, although not yet announced, are expected to be similar to those of 1917, and the draft have caused many of the players to change their diamond uniforms for those of other teams. The army and navy, the prospect point to the carrying on of the game this summer with the same keen rivalry that has marked the sport in past years.

Considered broadly there appears to be about the usual distribution of playing talent and strength as in former pennant races for where one club has improved its combination, another has lost one or more of its formidable players, thus, in a general way, evening up the situation. In the National league the Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago teams on paper, at least, appear to be stronger than was the case twelve months ago. The New York club, winner of the 1917 pennant, does not strike the close student of the game as being quite as impressive as last season, while both Brooklyn and Philadelphia are scarcely as strong as a year ago.

The Chicago White Sox stand out as the ranking favorite in the American league for the combination will begin the season fully as powerful as when the team closed the 1917 campaign with the double laurels of pennant winners and world champions. Among the other clubs the New York Yankees are undoubtedly stronger in every department, with the exception of pitchers, than was the case last year. The Boston Red Sox are more or less of an uncertain quantity yet many of their followers expect to see in the success of the league, Cleveland, Detroit and Washington are up to the standard of last season if not a trifle stronger, while the Philadelphia Athletics, with a number of youngsters in the line-up cannot be figured upon in advance.

In considering the prospects of the coming season the executives of the two major leagues have taken considerable time to make a study of the quality of play or in its hold upon its followers. Plans, therefore, in relation to baseball sport will not decline in quality of play or in its hold upon its followers.

THREE SNAPPY GAMES ROLLED BY CHURCH LEAGUE TEAMS ON "THE Y" ALLEYS LAST NIGHT

Two out of the three games rolled last night on the Y. M. C. A. alleys between the German Lutherans and the Methodists were won by the latter. The bowling was spirited throughout excepting in the second game when the German Lutherans went back-sliding, but came back like fury in the last end and seemed to have eluded it when Nelson of the Methodists made a sensational hit, winning the game by two pins. Nelson was the champion knicker of the Methodists while Mantel upheld the reputation of the German Lutherans. The score follows:

RED MEN MEET TODAY TO MAP OUT WORK

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
Meriden, Conn., April 13.—Plans for patriotic work among the 7,000 members of the order in this state was discussed at the meeting here today when the chiefs of record of the various tribes of Connecticut Red Men met to map out the work of the order for the coming year. A large number of the members are in the service, and those at home are to present sixteen ambulances to the government, one for each of the army cantonments.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER
Joe Jackson of the champion White Sox has been playing ball—money ball—since 1913. That's the year he batted out with Greenville. In eighty-six games he batted .346. Since that time he has never dropped below the .300 mark. Once he scored beyond .400 in a year. That was in 1911, with Cleveland, his first full year in the majors. But last year Jackson began to slip as a batter. He seemed to be dropping in a sheer forty points over a season's work. If he had made one less hit...

he would not have hit .300. As it was he accumulated a mark of .301. The difference between the southern boy's top mark in the majors and his low mark is tremendous in figures. It is exactly 107 points. The question is is Jackson really slipping or was 1917 simply a bad year for him? Will he show a batting reversal as he did in 1916, when he pattered his 1915 average of .308 by more than thirty markers? To be of any genuine value to a ball club a mechanical player of the Jackson type must be at least a .300 hitter and a consistent one at that. Jackson may be well classed as one of the mysteries of the coming race.

Jimmie Wilde, the flyweight champion of England, who is to meet an American midge in the name of Duvoy Atsey in three or four weeks, has enlisted in the English army. The boys tell me Jimmie is a rabid patriot. He has been trying to enlist ever since the war broke out, but was repeatedly turned down because he weighs only ninety-eight pounds. In some mysterious fashion Jimmie has picked up two pounds (there's something suspicious about that weight when he gains an ounce) and this is enough to get him by the physical tests. It wasn't so long ago that Jimmie threw kayos into Zulu Kid and Johnny Rosner, American flyweights who figured they ought to be wearing the title diadem. The dope is that he will repeat at the expense of Atsey, who hasn't done very much with the little fellows over here.

I don't know what the majors will finally decide to do about starting the games this season. A universal agreement has been sought in view of the new conditions brought about through the daylight saving plan by which the clocks were moved ahead one hour. I do know this—if the leagues all start their games an hour earlier than in the past there will be fewer extra inning games going into darkness, and ending in no change. That was in 1911, with Cleveland, his first full year in the majors. But last year Jackson began to slip as a batter. He seemed to be dropping in a sheer forty points over a season's work. If he had made one less hit...

Grover Alexander, whom the Cubs got from the Phillies for a couple of million dollars and a mortgage on the loop, should prove a tower of strength to the Chicago entry. Grover is not only a remarkable pitcher in the matter of turning back the opposition, but he's a real hard worker. A glutton for toil, as the saying goes. Few of you fans realize that Alexander pitched more innings than any other hurler in the old league last year. It's a fact. The big fellow worked in forty-five games, totaling 388 innings of play. On top of that he held his opponents to an average of 1.55 runs a game.

Minister Hoover has instructed pitchers to taboo the bean ball this season. "We need all our catchables we can get," explains Friend Herbert.

Every year some bright young man announces that the team with which he is connected isn't going to use the hit and run play any more—the old ham-and-eggs, as the boys in the small leagues used to refer to the play. The reason is the usual one: that the play is of recent origin; a fad taken up last season, tried a couple of months and dropped as impracticable. The hit and run is one of the oldest and most successful in modern baseball, and modern baseball dates back twenty years and more. I don't know of any team which employed the play as a regular thing. The Detroit Tigers are supposed to have used it more often than any other team in the American league. But if figures were available it would probably be shown that all the clubs use the play with more or less frequency.

Of course teams with clever "place hitters," like Washington with "Bird" Foster, for instance, and the Tigers with Veach, Cobb and Bush, run less risk in using the play, and naturally employ it more often than others. But just as no team has ever used the play as a steady diet, nor will there be any organization of smart players who forsake it entirely. Its primary virtue lies in its unexpectedness. It is one of the prettiest plays in the game. To eliminate it entirely from a team's offensive scheme would be to rob that team of color and variety, qualities essential not only to success on the diamond but at the box office as well. Our private hunch is that the hit and run will go with us as long as the game itself exists.

With France on third, England on second and Italy on first, you'd like to see our old Uncle Samuel come to the tee and clean-up with a four-base wallop?

There is a report going the rounds that Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane, who is doing his bit touching the soldiers how to defend themselves, is overweight and that he's nearing a weight limit of a feather. Don't listen to it. I was with the champion three days ago. He's in the best of shape, as he always is. Moreover, he can make 122 pounds stand at the ringside today, tomorrow or next month. The champion is constantly in light training. There is another report that the champion isn't going to fight against the German Emperor's army. As soon as any featherweight thinks he deserves a crack at the title I'll accommodate him," said Kilbane. The featherweights are no deserving enough to seriously menace Kilby's present position, at least.

DO YOU KNOW THAT: The running horses are enjoying one of the best seasons in the history of the game?

It's peculiar how ball players will neglect to care for minor physical disturbances which interfere with their playing. Rolfe Zeider when with the White Sox was troubled with bunions. He possessed the most notorious set of bunions in captivity. It undoubtedly affected his work. Cleveland has a recruit this year by the name of Alva Hilt, formerly of the Brooklands. Hilt is a chronic tonsil victim. The malady has troubled him for several seasons, and he neglected to treat his throat. Lee Fohl informed the newcomer that tonsils had to be put under a physician's care this year or Hilt could look elsewhere for work. The fellow is a real find. Hilt is showing splendid form in the early games and gives promise to experiencing his best year.

SCOTCHING THE I. W. W. BY NEW LEGISLATION

Washington, April 11.—Various measures are pending in Congress designed to put teeth into our laws for the apprehension and punishment of spies and those responsible for the destruction of property. Representative Charles F. Curry of California is the author of one such measure, aimed at the I. W. W. and similar organizations. Under its terms a penalty of 20 years' imprisonment or a fine of $25,000 may be inflicted on any person who is a member of a society that advocates murder or the destruction of property for any purpose whatsoever. Anybody who conspires to destroy a building in such a way that human life is endangered may be imprisoned 60 years, or suffer death. Any violator of Mr. Curry's measure would be liable to trial and sentence by court martial the same as if he were in the military service.

Hit the Trail!
Republicans who drafted and piloted through the Senate the resolution requesting the President to set aside a day of prayer for the success of our armies are much gratified at the responses that are coming to them from all parts of the country. The public is feeling deeply the travesty of the German Emperor almost daily calling upon God to bring victory to him and his armies, while the commander-in-chief of the American army and navy has never thought it worth while publicly to request the people to call for Divine guidance. It is hoped that with the prompting he has received from the Republicans in Congress Mr. Wilson will take action in the manner suggested.

Pass Them Around.
Republican Congressman Jacob E. Meeker of Missouri has been active in seeking to have war contracts distributed more evenly over the country, instead of being let almost entirely to firms along the Atlantic coast. Much of the congestion in freight shipments and the shortage of labor can be attributed directly, in Mr. Meeker's opinion, to the concentration of war work within a comparatively small area. He has been energetically presenting the War Department. The result of his efforts has been that a new policy is gradually being put into effect whereby the industrial resources of the entire country are to be given their fair share of war work.

France on the Job.
"Perhaps no one here realizes better than do I," says Senator Joseph L. Bristow of Maryland, "the necessity for immediate and masterful action when human life hangs in the balance." The Senator refers to the fact that before he became a member of the Senate he was a practicing physician, and upon his quick decision and action many a life has depended. Mr. Bristow is a constant attendant upon the sessions of the Senate, and registers his name at every roll call. The delays that have been only too apparent in some of the war legislation considered by Congress cannot be charged even remotely to Senator France, who has been ready to give prompt approval to every measure designed to increase the efficiency of our arms.

Seed Corn Tests.

Farmers needing seed corn can still secure it through the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, at the State Capitol, Madison. The final date for orders was set at April 1, but the opportunity has been extended to the farmers who have failed to get in their order up to April 20. Those sending in orders from now on must expect to wait approximately three weeks for delivery, until crops which are available for order by telegram can reach here from the east.

All orders sent in thus far have been taken care of, but from now on shipments will be made in accordance with the arrival of orders, as the state cannot run the risk of having a large value invested in corn after the time for its use is past.
The test of all seed corn is very low. Farmers must expect to get much corn testing above 80%, except southern grown seed which germinates well but will not ripen.
There are still individual lots of seed corn in ear on Wisconsin farms whose average test is low, but from which high testing seed corn can be secured by testing each ear and throwing out the low testing ears. In some places 1917 crib corn can also be secured in this way from cribs of corn well stored. In many instances farmers can secure much better corn in this way on their own farms than the corn shipped in full carloads from the east and from South Dakota and Nebraska.

Emphasis must be placed upon the need of looking out for seed corn at the earliest possible date or there is great danger that seed cannot be secured, if the demand comes the last moment before planting.
The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, at the Capitol acting in cooperation with the State Council of Defense and the State Seed Committee, is handling the seed distribution this year in a way as to keep the regular agencies for the distribution of seeds working at their highest pitch, in addition the supplementary efforts of the state. In carrying out this policy, the state is shipping in full carloads to County Councils and seed dealers but is distributing smaller lots from such cars through seed houses at prices satisfactory to the State.
All orders for corn should be addressed to C. P. Nordgard, Commissioner of Agriculture, State Department of Agriculture, Madison.

PROTECTION URGED FOR ALASKAN COAST

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, April 13.—Protection for the gateways of Alaska by adequate coast and harbor charting was urged in a special bulletin issued today by the Coast and Geodetic Survey. With more than 24,000 miles of detailed coast line, Alaska cannot be approached without plying the waters that nearly surround it, because gigantic mountain ranges, that may never be surmounted by railroads but the path to the east. In fact, the Coast and Geodetic Survey has had less than $4,000,000 to spend in Alaskan waters on work "that should invariably precede development of a new country." Exports from Alaska through these waterways have amounted to $70,000,000 in fifty years, reaching the greatest annual amount last year when $4,709,359 worth of goods was sent out of the territory which originally cost the government $7,200,000. Imports to Alaska in fifty years have amounted to $412,000,000, showing the vast amount of trade carried on with the territory solely by means of ships.

The bulletin said Alaska has many fine undeveloped harbors, of which little is known. Owing to lack of charts, 224 American vessels have been lost in Alaskan waters during the last twenty years, carrying to their deaths 250 persons. About 70 per cent of the losses were due to strandings which might have been prevented by accurate surveys.
"There should be the most serious thought given now to taking care of Alaska's greatest need," the bulletin concludes. "The war should not delay preparation for the work, as immediate provision looking to the care of the preliminaries will mean the saving possibly of years."

ANTI-LOAFING BILL IS PASSED IN NEW YORK

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, April 13.—Word from Albany that Governor Whitman has signed the new anti-loafing bill will be the signal for the invasion by deputy sheriffs of all establishments in Manhattan where jazz bands and dancing men furnish the chief attraction for young women. Special attention, the sheriff announced, would be given to club idlers and men who spend their time in pleasureable but non-productive sport. Sheriff Whitman's proclamation to officers concludes: "The possession by any man of money, property or income sufficient to support himself will be no defense for idleness."

BEST IN THE LONG RUN

A Message from America's Roads

SECURE certainty of service in Tested Tires. They give sure service because it is proven service. Their endurance and mileage have been proved in the one way to assure mileage to the motorist, on the car on the road.

Hearken to that 1918 message, the roads of America send American motorists. Last year Goodrich, launching six Test Car Fleets in six widely different regions of our country, took Goodrich Tires, and with light and heavy cars mauled them over sand, gravel and rock roads of plains, deserts and mountains, to try out—

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

What those tires endured doubled Goodrich's pride in its tires. They fought America's roads through 4,178,744 tire miles. They conquered the roads of America in that phenomenal mileage, those BLACK SAFETY TREADS and SILVERTOWN CORDS.

Let American motorists listen to this message from America's roads. It means time and money saved them. They get lasting service with the tires that have won the title, "America's Tested Tires."

Will You HELP Bring Back The Boys of This Community?

Our boys, the boys from this town and this county and this state, are fighting the Huns. They are in the trenches in France, they are sailing the U-boat-infested seas, they are going "over the top" in the face of German cannon and machine gun fire.

Many, many more of our boys are now training and will soon be in France, and more are yet to be called.

And, remember, these are our boys; those who are near and dear to us. They are doing their ALL. They are giving their ALL. They are prepared to make the extreme sacrifice that our homes, our town, our nation, may escape the ravages of the Hun.

We want them—one and all—to come back to us—

Will You Help to Bring Them Back?

Will you help to provide them with the things they need, with clothes and food and munitions, that they may complete as quickly as possible the terrible task assigned to them?

Will you support our boys while they are fighting for us, fighting the German autocracy that seeks to destroy our ideals of liberty and justice?

Compared to their heroic sacrifice our part is but small—that of providing the funds to keep them equipped; to build and man the ships that will transport their food, their clothes, their guns and their ammunition, and to pay for these things.

Yes, we, the people of this community, will support our boys.

We will do it by buying bonds of the Third Liberty Loan; by buying all these bonds we can; by making such sacrifices as are necessary to do this. That will be our support for Our Boys.

In utilizing this advertisement to talk Liberty Bonds rather than our own business, we do so in the firm belief that there will be little of either pleasure or profit in our business or in any American business unless liberty wins the war.

The Liberty Loan Publicity Committee, A. E. Matheson Chairman, concurs in the belief of J. M. Bostwick & Sons that unless Liberty wins this war there will be little of business or pleasure and acknowledges the donation of this page advertisement to the cause.
